Respect roots, embrace future

Rosecrance leads the way in behavioral health

We measure everything we do against the yardstick of Rosecrance's almost-100 year history.

Not that we're opposed to change — far from it. Rosecrance has a tradition of evolving to meet the demands of society at a given time while anticipating the future.

What I mean is that we never forget our roots. We don't grow for the sake of growth. We grow in response to the compassionate mission and values of our organization to address unmet needs in the community. As I look back on Fiscal Year 2011 and ahead to 2012, I can say with confidence that the tremendous changes we've experienced and those we anticipate are true, in spirit, to the legacy of our founders, Dr. James and Fannie Rosecrance.

Dr. Rosecrance, who established his practice in New Milford to serve soldiers returning from the Civil War, surely would appreciate our new program to treat veterans with co-occurring substance use and mental health disorders. The Rosecrances most likely would understand the thinking behind the groundbreaking merger between Rosecrance and the former Janet Wattles Center. Our combined operations allow Rosecrance to better meet community needs.

As to the future, we took an important step forward through a new partnership with Crusader Community Health. We have "embedded" a licensed mental health counselor at Crusader to help primary care providers serve patients who come in for physical ailments but who also may need behavioral health services. This kind of integrated care is the wave of the future.

I marked a personal milestone in May at my 40th anniversary with Rosecrance. Sometimes I wonder where the years have gone. I was one of 14 staff members taking care of 24 boys with behavior problems back in 1971. Now, Rosecrance is nearing 600 staff serving more than 13,000 individuals each year.

So much has changed. Yet, the span of four decades disappears for me when I see the patients come into treatment for addiction or mental health crises. Their faces and their demeanor reflect the same distress and the same needs we saw back in the 1970s.

We are still here to serve with compassion and with quality. We might alter how and where we deliver care from decade to decade, but our mission of providing help, hope and the best opportunity for lasting recovery will not change — regardless of what challenges we face in the coming year.

This is our purpose, as we all go forward, with the grace of God, one day at a time.

Behavioral healthcare means services for addiction and mental health

Rosecrance now one of the most comprehensive behavioral health networks in Illinois

We now pronounce you Behavioral Healthcare. The union of addiction treatment and mental health services places Rosecrance at the leading edge of the industry and positions the organization to offer patients the best in integrated care.

The category of "behavioral health" may be unfamiliar to some people, but it is the new terminology for the services Rosecrance delivers at all of its campuses.

In addition, the term best describes a more holistic approach to wellness that recognizes the importance of behavioral health to physical health.

The merger of Janet Wattles Center into Rosecrance makes the organization one of the most comprehensive behavioral health networks in Illinois. That bodes well for patient care, said Philip W. Eaton, Rosecrance President/CEO.

"True integrated care occurs when behavioral health needs are not necessarily relegated to stand-alone organizations," Eaton said. "Our goal over the coming year is to offer 'any-door access' to services at our campuses as we continue to integrate services."

When complete, any-door access should allow new patients entering through the front door at any Rosecrance campus to receive the behavioral health services they need. Inroads have been made in that direction. Addiction treatment services soon will be offered at the Ware Center, the renamed mental health center in downtown Rockford.

Recognizing the growing need for treatment of people with dual diagnoses of mental illness and substance abuse, Rosecrance opened a new inpatient unit in February at the Harrison adult campus to serve these patients. Across the organization, clinical staff members report a growing number of patients with co-occurring disorders.

Staff, board members and Rosecrance friends were on hand when President/CEO Philip Eaton, seated, signed merger documents on Sept. 1, 2011. They are, from left: Jerry Paris, Bruce Hagshenas, attorney Renée Popovits, Gregg Franchini, Mary Ann Abate, Ann Bown, Dave Gomel, Judi Jobe, John Schuster, Tom Furst, Jeff DiBenedetto and attorney Puneet Leekha.

A report from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimates that by the year 2020, mental illness and addiction will surpass physical diseases as major causes for disability around the world.

On an encouraging note, national healthcare reform and parity legislation should open doors for patients who seek treatment for behavioral health issues.

The National Advisory Mental Health Council reports positive outcomes for individuals who receive appropriate care. For instance, the Council reports these success rates, by behavioral health category: 80 percent for bipolar disorder; 65-80 percent for major depression; 60 percent for schizophrenia; 70 percent for addiction.

From a positive perspective, Eaton said, behavioral health should be viewed as the desired outcome, not how individuals begin their relationship with Rosecrance. "We start with broken people struggling

"Behavioral health manages mental health and addiction issues through prevention, diagnosis, treatment and recovery. Behavioral health is the right step to improving the overall well-being of a person's body, mind and spirit."

with their place in life, whether from addiction or mental illness," Eaton said. "Our staff is motivated by a belief in the human spirit to heal. We see it daily in what we call the miracle of recovery."

An update on parity

Rosecrance Health Network played a central role in parity legislation that was passed by the 2011 Illinois General Assembly and signed into law by Gov. Pat Quinn in August.

The new law echoes federal legislation that prohibits insurance companies from discriminating against people who seek treatment for mental health or substance use disorders.

Renée Popovits, general counsel for RHN, championed parity legislation on the national and state levels, and she played a key role in drafting the state bill that eventually became law.

"The issue is simple: Behavioral healthcare is primary healthcare," Rosecrance President/CEO Philip Eaton wrote in a Rockford Register Star guest column.

Workshops help families, communities

Why is it so difficult to get a loved one to stop abusing drugs and alcohol? What can a parent do in advance to prevent serious problems?

These questions and more were answered this fall at a Rosecrance-sponsored community workshop series titled, "What Can I Say to Convince Them to Quit?"

Three workshops were offered in November in various communities to family members and others who were concerned about loved ones' substance use.

"Family members often are motivated to get help before the actual substance abuser," said Mary Egan, Rosecrance Community Relations Coordinator.

"I believe the family is under-represented in the recovery process. These workshops were designed to reach the family."

Rosecrance regularly promotes workshops and trainings to educate our communities on behavioral health.

Some of the many topics covered in 2011 included "Understanding Adolescent Addiction," "Introduction to Mental Illness" and "The Honesty of Deceit of the Young Heroin User."

'Art of Healing' gallery promotes recovery

"Art of Healing," a gallery that featured 70 pieces of artwork created by Rosecrance patients, showcased recovery in October at Barnes & Noble at CherryVale Mall. The gallery was part of Rockford Area Arts Council's "Art Scene."

"The expressive arts are a very powerful tool in the recovery process," said Mary Gubbe Lee, Training Coordinator with Rosecrance. "Hosting the gallery was our gift to our patients."

Barnes & Noble displayed hundreds of books and recovery-related materials as part of the event. A percentage of the proceeds from sales of those materials was donated to Rosecrance.

One of the art pieces displayed was a large painting of koi. Christine Nicholson, the experiential therapies supervisor at Rosecrance Griffin Williamson Campus, sketched the fish in the summer of 2010. Six groups of adolescent patients then painted portions of the sketch over the course of a day. The artwork is featured on the cover of this edition of Reach.

"I thought 'Art of Healing' was a great way to get people introduced to both art and recovery," Nicholson said. "People in recovery are very talented, and it was wonderful for the public to get to see that."

A Rosecrance staff member adds decoration to the daily schedule on one of the girls' wings at Rosecrance Griffin Williamson Campus. Rosecrance has seen improvements in patients' alertness, mood and motivation after building in an extra hour of sleep to the daily schedule.

A better way to do sleep

Rosecrance circadian rhythm study results in more sleep, better experience for teen patients

It's standard practice at Rosecrance to ask: "Is there a better way?" If the answer is yes, we'll do what it takes to change our treatment program to give children, adolescents and adults the best opportunity for lasting recovery.

That's the Rosecrance Way, and it was this goal for performance improvement that led a staff member to suggest that we look at the circadian rhythms of teens in treatment to see how their unique sleep patterns might be affecting their treatment and recovery.

And what parent of a teenager hasn't been frustrated by their kids' sleep patterns? As the rest of the household is winding down for the night, teens hit their stride. Then, in the morning, it takes proverbial dynamite to get them out of bed to face their responsibilities for the day.

The reality is: That's just how they roll.

A teenager's natural rhythm is to be more wakeful later in the day, and they also need more sleep. Need peaks at about 12 or 13 years old and decreases slightly each year through about age 20, when a more regular "adult" sleep pattern is the norm.

Research on the subject has led hundreds of school districts across the nation to adopt later start times for middle and high school age students. So, we asked ourselves, might our young patients in treatment at the Griffin Williamson campus patients do better in treatment if we respected their circadian rhythm, as much as possible, and gave them more sleep time?

In February, we changed the entire daily schedule at the adolescent campus to allow all patients to sleep close to an hour longer. It meant changing times for medications, meals, group counseling, recreation and school. Staff schedules were revised to accommodate the new daily pattern.

Early indications are that our new schedule is having the desired effect. Staff members report that patients seem more alert and rested. We've seen improvements in patients' mood and motivation.

We will continue to evaluate the new schedule to see if it's helping patients in their recovery. r

Ware family bestows legacy gift

Family visited Ware Center in November to remember Frank

The family of the late Frank Ware, in accordance with his wishes, presented a generous legacy gift of $40,000 to Rosecrance at a special gathering on Nov. 17 at the Ware Center in downtown Rockford.

Frank, who died unexpectedly on Feb. 13, 2011, had made provisions for a portion of his estate to go for the benefit of individuals in need of mental health services. The gift will be placed in The Rosecrance Foundation Endowment Fund and will be restricted to support the Mental Health Division.

A delegation of Frank's relatives traveled from New Jersey to tour the Ware Center, which was renamed in Frank's honor on Sept. 1. The guests also had the opportunity to visit with staff members who had worked with Frank through the years.

Family present included Frank's three brothers, David, Robert and William, and two of his three sisters, Estella and Martha. Sister Nancy was unable to make the trip. Numerous other relatives and friends from New Jersey and Iowa attended the event, as well.

Woodward and Winnebago County were major donors to the project. Rep. Chuck Jefferson, D-Rockford, can be seen in the background.

Open house celebrates Vets program

Rosecrance donors contributed about $1 million to serve patients with co-occurring disorders

Rosecrance celebrated the successful completion of the Campaign for Veterans on Thursday, Nov. 17, with an open house for donors and tour of the unit.

The campaign, named the Veteran's Inpatient Priority (VIP) project, would not have been possible without the generosity of Rosecrance donors. The campaign raised about $1 million.

"Our donors stepped up to support this campaign out of gratitude for the sacrifices of these families," said Rosecrance President/CEO Philip Eaton.

The 14-bed unit at Rosecrance's Harrison Campus in Rockford opened in February. Though the unit serves any patient with co-occurring substance use and mental health disorders, military veterans receive priority for admission.

Northern Illinois has been shown to have one of the highest concentrations of veterans in the state. Combined with a high unemployment rate and an epidemic rate of opiate abuse, the need for an inpatient treatment facility for veterans was demonstrable.

The unit offers a comprehensive range of services, including treatment for post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), pharmacotherapy, group and individual counseling family therapy, meditation and fitness. Medications for both mental health and substance use disorders are integrated into the program.

Michael Cavanaugh to perform 'Songs of Elton John and More'

Back by popular demand, Michael Cavanaugh returns to headline the 2012 Rosecrance Foundation Benefit.

A charismatic performer, musician and actor, famous for his piano and lead vocals in the Broadway musical, "Movin' Out," Cavanaugh was handpicked by Billy Joel to star in the show. Cavanaugh was nominated in 2003 for both a Grammy and a Tony award. This year's performance features the songs of Elton John and more.

The Rosecrance Benefit is set for 6:30 p.m. on Monday, April 16, 2012, at Giovanni's in Rockford. All proceeds from the event help families affected by substance abuse and mental health disorders.

Caring and generous individuals have supported the benefit by contributing nearly $5 million over the past 20 years to provide charity care for children, youth, adults and families. The goal this year is to raise $350,000.

Tickets are $175 per person or $1,500 for a table of 10. Tickets include dinner and entertainment. The Benefactor Society, which is the backbone for this benefit, offers levels of support beginning at $1,500.

Michael Cavanaugh, who last performed at The Rosecrance Foundation Benefit in 2008, returns to headline the 2012 benefit on April 16 with an all new show.

Sponsors, restaurants ensured success of 2011 Cooking Up Hope

The Rosecrance Chicago Foundation Board's second annual Cooking Up Hope chef's tasting at Naperville Country Club on Oct. 2, 2011, was a delight for "foodies" and a financial success, raising almost $75,000 to serve suburban teens in need of drug treatment.

"We are so grateful to our wonderful sponsors, to participating restaurants and chefs, and to everyone who attended," said Board Chair John McDonough. "It is gratifying to have this kind of support in the Chicago area, as it allows Rosecrance to serve more young people whose families reach out to us for help."

YEAR IN REVIEW

2011 highlights & accomplishments

2011 was a year of positive change and incredible endurance for Rosecrance. An affiliation with Janet Wattles Center ignited a rapid expansion of services, while our CEO reflected on 40 years with the organization.

Eaton honored for 40 years with Rosecrance

Rosecrance President/CEO Philip W. Eaton was honored in 2011 for four decades of leadership and vision with the company. Eaton began work at Rosecrance as a social worker on May 25, 1971, after graduating from Trinity College. Working his way through the ranks, Eaton was named Executive Director in 1982 and President/CEO in 1990. When he began, Rosecrance had 14 employees and served 24 boys. Today, the organization serves more than 13,000 families each year.

Stars of Light: Volunteer Group of the Year

The Stars of Light Theatre Troupe was named the United Way of Rock River Valley Volunteer Group of the Year for 2011. The group is a traveling theatre troupe composed of mental health clients who educate the public about mental illness and reduce the stigma that surrounds it while sharing their artistic talents and personal stories. In 2011, the Stars celebrated their 200th performance.

New intensive outpatient program opened

Rosecrance opened a new adolescent intensive outpatient program in Frankfort, IL. The evidence-based program, which opened March 14, 2011, is designed to help teenagers develop skills to achieve abstinence from drugs and alcohol and sustain recovery. Convenient after-school hours allow families to get help for their children with minimal disruption to school schedules and daily activities.

Fink named Clinician of the Year

Rosecrance Ware Center clinician Sherry Fink was named Clinician of the Year by the National Alliance on Mental Illness. Fink, a 13-year employee at the Ware Center, was nominated for the award by her peers. She leads a team of caseworkers and specialists who work with Boone and Winnebago County residents with mental illness who are homeless or in danger of being homeless without intervention.

Ware Center gets new entrance, new look

The Rosecrance Ware Center completed a major renovation in May 2011. The building's original entrance, which hadn't been used in two decades, as well as the lobby, office spaces and treatment areas all were remodeled.

Andersons, Graffs receive 2011 Castle Award

The 2011 Castle Award was presented to two families whose vision and philanthropy helped to create a Healing Garden at the adolescent treatment center, which opened in 2004. The families of John and Linda Anderson and John and Judy Anderson Graff received the award. Rosecrance President/CEO Philip W. Eaton said the Healing Garden has become a central element in the treatment program. It would not have been possible without the Andersons' and Graffs' leadership and the support of many donors.

Rosecrance serving homeless veterans

Rosecrance received $153,000 in federal funds from the Department of Veterans Affairs to serve homeless veterans in need of shelter and mental health services. Sixteen veterans are receiving housing at scattered sites in Rockford and services through the Ware Center. Only three agencies in Illinois received funds for the housing program, which is part of the national movement to end homelessness for vets.
